Messrs. J. Brooks, J. Alison, R. Cootes, Krugon, 6 European, and 48 Chinese deck.

Reports.

The British steamer Mona reports having had moderate breeze and thick weather throughout the passage. The steamer Formose was in Swatow, when the Rona left. Passed on the 3th inst., outside Swatow the steamer Undine bound in.

The Dutch steamer Kedoudalem, from Batavia April 20th, reports having had calms and light winds up to Singapore, and afterwards calms and heavy swell up the China sea. The Kedoudalem proceeds to Japan in a day or two, and on arrival there will be offered for sale. She is a paddle boat, and only six months old, the present being her second trip. The Captain who was formerly in command of the N.I.S.Y. Co.'s steamer Lion' Willem, III. is the only European on board, and sets us his own Engineer at the same time having no mate to render any assistance.

U.S. ship Idaho from New York, for the Asiatic Squadron, Edward Hooker, Commanding, was at Dilley on the 24th of March, having been 99 days from Rio Janeiro for Japan, 78 days out. The British ship Portsmouth-Ho, from Liverpool for Shanghai, on the 22nd of March.

The North German schooner Frisch reports having left Tientsin on the 11th, but was detained until the 27th by a strong Easterly wind. After crossing the bar had thick weather with moderate Easterly and North Easterly breeze. The North German barque Feiga left for Newchwang, and North German brig Hieronymus for Chefoo, the same day as the Frisch.

1 of 868 Hongkong, 29th April, 1868.

NOTICE.

THE Undersigned call the attention of Masters and Agents of vessels discharging at this port to the great advantage to be gained in point of convenience, despatch, and economy, by making use of their Wharves at New Harbour.

With the assistance of steam cranes, a general cargo can be landed easily in a few days—or in about one-fifth of the time usually occupied discharging in the ordinary way.

There are large, dry, and very commodious brick godowns on the wharves, which vessels have free use of for cargo while discharging.

The trouble and annoyance of theft and pilfering of cargo common among boatmen, are avoided by vessels using the wharves.

Cartage of cargo to the town (which is within easy distance) is guaranteed to be not more than lighterage from the roads, and the coolie hire discharging alongside in less.

There is always a large stock on the premises, which can be supplied to steamers at the lowest market price, and vessels going alongside to take in or discharge coals pay no harbour dues.

Steamers discharging cargo pay a wharfage of 20 cents per ton—a trifling charge when the immense advantages gained are taken into consideration.

Arrangements have been made by which all repairs to ships or steamers can be done with despatch while the vessels are lying alongside the wharves.

There is an efficient European pilot on the premises, and, when required, a steam tug is always available.

HONGKONG, MAY 11TH, 1868.

A LITTLE skirmish in the Police-court, reported on Saturday, between the representatives of authority and Messrs. CARLOWITZ, concerning certain houses which were not registered in accordance with the laws made and provided to that effect, is suggestive in a variety of ways. We know nothing of the case beyond what appears in the police report, and, indeed, it is unnecessary altogether to discuss that particular case. It is suggestive because it brings up a difficulty which he given rise to much trouble in Hongkong. It is in human nature,—and the phenomenon is particularly prominent here,—to dislike doing what it is told. There are some people with a keen appreciation of administrative science and a love of order, who will readily conform to regulations which they consider reasonable, but, as a general rule, such readiness where it exists springs rather from the fact that the Government from which the regulations emanate, is liked for some reason independently of the regulations in question. When a Government is disliked, the natural instinct to resist doing what it is told becomes very rampant in sturdy Anglo-Saxon natures. No reasonably observant man can doubt that many have emanating from the Hongkong Government would be found obnoxious to many people now, because it is inevitable that there should be some persons sua prices with it by this time on various accounts.

Now, we do not want to waste time in urging that public measures ought to be considered on their own merits. It is not merely in Hongkong that personal feeling governs opinion. There are plenty of people who have a hatred for DISRAELI, (we do not pretend to say why), and no good thing will come, for them, out of the cabinet over which he presides. For other persons no good thing will ever come out of the Hongkong Government offices. Very good. We are not just this moment going to consider whether it is possible in the nature of things that good things can issue from them or not. Surely, however, it is very strange that Anglo-Saxons who are so sturdy as to refuse compliance with regulations made by the Government, should not do what in them lies to protest against any measures which they dislike, but the odd thing is that while there is as much anti-Government feeling in this colony, no one ever dreams of using voice or pen to assert and propagate his own views. Disobedience to regulations which are considered objectionable, except in rare cases, is a very unwise kind of opposition. Any organised Government must necessarily be stronger than any individual, no matter how important unofficial individuals may be. It is of no use to remain quiescent until you are affected by any regulation you dislike, then disregard it, and be fined. We have all seen how some firms here please to treat police regulations, as to the way in which goods shall be hauled up into godowns, with contempt. They content themselves, however, with disregarding them, and get fined. What good does that do? If the regulations are bad, the only thing to do is (in homely phrase) to kick up a row about them until they are altered. We also see a certain compound documents, in an arbitrary and inconvenient manner under certain circumstances. The law is made publicly; anyone can see how it may act, but no one says or does anything, and all of a sudden it comes to pass that a document belonging to a puisnest bank manager is impounded. The banker raves, and the Government official, in that instance, "carcs," and then the momentary storm is over; no one cares to agitate against leaving such a power in the official's hands. We wrote about the evil once or twice, and might as well have written upon the sea sand of a desert inland at low tide, for all the support, beyond that conversational support, which amounts to nothing, that our protests obtained. Here, very likely, in the very latest development of this matter, is some one who objects to the regulation affecting the registration of landlords, and the only way in which he operates against the law is in disobeying it. That may show Anglo-Saxon independence, but certainly does not reveal Anglo-Saxon aptitude for public affairs.

AMONGST the various ways of going home that are now open to people returning to England from Hongkong, there is one which never seems to have been adopted, but is not altogether impossible, and might under some circumstances be extremely enjoyable. It is open to a man to go home by P. and O. steamer, by the French mail, by sailing ship round the Cape, by Pacific Mail and Panama, by the route across the Plains and via the Salt Lake City, a route which is only objectionable to persons who dislike the chance of being scalped. Then there is the real overland route through Siberia; but there is one more which has never yet been tried that we know of. There is the route via anywhere you please, in a joint-stock yacht. What is meant by a joint-stock yacht. What is meant by a number of persons, intending to leave Hongkong about the same time, from chartering a moderate-sized vessel, say a small barque or a three-masted schooner, and proceeding on from island unto island at the gateways of the day? They would know the "merry world was round," and that they might sail, if not "for evermore," which would probably interfere with other engagements, as long as all events, as they pleased. We imagine that there are few people with a love for travelling who have not a tendresse for the islands in the Pacific. Possibly they may not be quite equal to the golden pictures of the fancy,—strongly impregnated with the influences of the California trade, it is reasonable to suppose they are not. But whatever disappointments might await persons with very high expectations it is impossible to deny that the archipelagoes of the Pacific form a section of the world out of any regular tracks, and to which it is not likely that anyone will have many opportunities during his life of going. The joint stock yacht might be freighted with cargo as well as with passengers, and the expense of the voyage might be thus reduced, perhaps, very much below the cost of going home any other way. Then it would not be necessary that the whole journey should be accomplished this way. The ultimate destination, if the general course were easterly, might be the isthmus of Panama. The passengers, having nothing but their own tastes to consult, might provide themselves with all possible comforts on board, and the whole voyage might be a very charming way of spending four or five months.

Police Intelligence, May 9th.

BEFORE C. MAY, Esq.

The number of Chinese who were brought before the sitting magistrate this morning for the offence of being abroad after nine o'clock in the evening, was unusually large, and occupied a considerable portion of the morning's sitting.

LUM-A-NING was charged with stealing two stone mason's chisels, from one CHOW-TAE-YOW, a stone cutter.

The complainant said he was cutting stone at Shan-tei-kau, and on leaving his work for a few moments, to go to his house, he saw the prisoner take up his chisels and run away with them, he gave chase but could not overtake the rogue if a foreigner had not stopped him.

P. C. 45 (Chinese) testified to joining in the chase after the prisoner, and also to having seen the fellow throw the chisels down while running. The defendant was brazen enough to state that the complainant threw the chisels at him, and they gave in charge.

Mr. May, however, showed his disbelief of the prisoner's story, by sending him to gaol for three months' imprisonment.

The case against Messrs. Bowman & Co., which was remanded from last Friday at the request of the defendants' representatives, was again called on to-day.

The only question on the last occasion was whether the ground under the verandah of defendants' godown was public property or not. Inspector Albert stated that the width of the Praya, opposite the godown belonging to the defendants, was eighty feet, which was the proper width.

Mr. Paulsen, who again appeared on behalf of the defendants, admitted that the footpath under the verandah was public property, but submitted, nevertheless, that as the practice had been carried on for some considerable time, it was not really an obstruction.

Mr. May said that he was constantly fining and cautioning the Chinese dealers of the colony for the very same thing. The footpath was public property, and the defendants had no right whatever to weigh cotton or anything else on it. He wished to know if Mr. Paulsen was prepared to give a guarantee that the practice should be discontinued.

Mr. Paulsen said he was prepared to say that no more cotton or other goods should be weighed on the pathway.

Mr. May therefore said he should impose a fine of one dollar.

ROBBERY FROM THE "CARMARTHENSHIRE."

KOO-A-TAI, boatman, in charge of one of Messrs. Morgan, Lambert & Co.'s cargo-boats, was charged with stealing one bale of cotton from the British ship Carmarthenshire, and he being part of a consignment to Messrs. Reiss & Co.

Captain John Hemsworth, of the Carmarthenshire, said he arrived here on the 10th of February, with a general cargo for various firms in this port. The cargo was discharged in different boats. On or about the 5th of March last he was informed by the first officer, that one bale of calico was missing. It was usual when discharging cargo to get a receipt from the cargo-boat, but as they were discharging Messrs. Morgan, Lambert & Co.'s cargo first, they thought the bale might have gone into a boat without a receipt being given. One day, certainly, the chief officer left the deck to go to dinner, and he was informed that while at dinner, and he was informed that while at dinner a boat had carried away a bale of calico. The Inspector, he believed, knew that the calico in court was part of the stolen bale.

Mr. Adolphus Zemmer, of Messrs. Reiss & Co., said there was calico for him on board the Carmarthenshire. The bill of lading was sent to Messrs. Morgan, Lambert & Co., to have the cargo come off in their boats. When the cargo was delivered, he ascertained that one bale of his consignment was missing. The whole of the sixty pieces in the bale were marked with a star, and a star in blue. There was also "XM" marked on each piece. (Calico produced, but the marks were not exactly as described by witness.) He was not prepared to swear to the calico produced, but it was much like his.

A Chinaman who had been employed for four months in No. 2 boat, belonging to Messrs. Morgan, Lambert & Co., but who was discharged on March 10th, said on the 10th of February he went on board the prisoner's boat, which was lying alongside the Carmarthenshire, and saw him concealing about 50 pieces of calico. He saw two men sitting by the prisoner. Afterwards, he saw that he never spoke as he spoke on Monday night, because, perhaps, he had not himself influenced so far until he felt himself impelled by the force of a general movement, and still more because it would have been useless to have stirred the subject before public opinion in favour of Reform had reached a pitch which in England was ripe enough to give him a chance of success. The time had come on Monday night, and he only said what it was quite necessary he should say, as a leader of his party, and a statesman aspirant to guide the action of the country. But it was a very different thing to give notice of such a regular party move as a formal resolution on the Irish Church. This resolution can do no more than enable him to win a doubtful triumph over the Ministry, which, even if he wins it, will, it is to be feared, seriously add to the great difficulties he will have to encounter when he comes to lay a proposal for dealing with the Irish Church before Parliament.

Preparations for the Battle.

The opposition has selected its weapons, and appointed the day for a meeting. In other words, Mr. Gladstone has given notice that he will make the following resolutions on the Irish Church question:—

"1. That in the opinion of the House it is necessary that the Established Church of Ireland should cease to exist as an establishment (Opposition cheers), the regard being had to all personal interests, and to all individual rights of property." (Ironical Ministerial cheers and laughter.)

"2. That, subject to the foregoing considerations, it is expedient to prevent the creation of new personal interests by the exercise of any public patronage (cheers), and to confine the operations of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners of Ireland to objects of immediate necessity or involving individual rights, pending the final decision of Parliament."

"3. That a humble address be presented to Her Majesty, humbly to pray that, with a view to the purposes aforesaid, Her Majesty would be graciously pleased to place at the disposal of Parliament her interest in the temporalities of the archbishoprics, bishoprics, and other ecclesiastical dignities and foundations in Ireland, and in the custody thereof."

In the event of a defeat on this question—which is more than possible—speculation is rife as to the course which Mr. Disraeli will adopt. The Premier has already announced his intentions to dissolve Parliament at the beginning of next year, when the electors created by the Act of last session will for the first time exercise the privileges of the franchise. It is inferred by many, from the tone of the hon. gentleman's remarks, that the Government would quickly accept a defeat on Mr. Gladstone's motion, and appeal on the public business as though nothing had happened. On the other hand, it is said that if Ministers are defeated on Mr. Gladstone's resolution, they will be compelled to appeal to the country. The Observer says that in that case "Mr. Disraeli will recommend Her Majesty to dissolve Parliament, with the view of permitting the country to express an opinion on the Irish question in its importance. The attempt to deal with a question of so much importance by an abstract resolution of the House does not meet with the approval of several leading members of the Liberal party, and considerable difficulty has been experienced in deciding upon its precise terms. While on the one hand it may be considered inconvenient to take the sense of the House on an abstract resolution, it will be contended on the other that the last session of a moribund Parliament is not fit to deal with such a question, and that the whole subject ought to be remitted to the consideration of a Parliament elected upon the broader basis of the English Reform Acts of last session, and the Scotch and Irish Reform Bills to be passed during the present session. Such is the Ministerial argument in the matter."

The Times, on the other hand, confidently says:—"Nothing can be more unsubstantial than the threats of a dissolution. Those who suggest a dissolution appear to forget that a dissolution appeal to the Reform Act cleanse cleverly introduced into the Reform Act of last year has made an appeal to the country practically impossible before January next. In appeal to the country therefore means an appeal to the 210 householders in boroughs and to the 250 tenants in counties—an appeal to the directors of Honiton and Tavistock to decide upon their two members—an appeal to enquire the policy of the empire. It is sufficient to state what is meant by 'an appeal to the country' at the present time to demonstrate its absurdity. The moral competence of confidence constituencies cannot be greater than the moral competence of a moribund Parliament. The fate of Mr. Gladstone's resolutions cannot affect the pre-ordained duration of the present Parliament. The vote upon them will be recorded as the final decision of a House of Commons elected by constituencies which have already ceased to command respect, and must soon be altogether obsolete, upon a question of grave national importance and of which the only new House of Commons, that will be the duty of a new House of Commons, elected by new constituencies, with the question before them, to accept or reject the decision of its predecessors."

Landed Property in England.

(From the "Pall Mall Gazette,")

There is an epidemic in the very atmosphere of times pregnant with great changes which seems not only to affect the minds of controversialists, but their very powers of expression. No one writes clearer and more nervous English than Mr. Goldwin Smith. This is a compliment with which he is usually greeted by those who are about to attack him as unintelligible and mischievous. What curious, though no doubt temporary dislocation of the intellect can have driven such a master of language into using the extraordinary verbiage which appears under his name in the form of a letter to the Daily News of the 14th of this month?

"I advocate," he says, "as I always have advocated, the abolition of primogeniture, and of the entail or settlement of land. . . . Primogeniture, entail, and settlement are artificial institutions, imposed, in the interest of a political class, on the natural distribution of land and their abolition would be a measure, not of confiscation, but of free trade. Any country must suffer from a violation, in the supposed interest of territorial aristocracy, of the economic laws of nature with regard to the distribution of land."

We should very much like to ask Mr. Goldwin Smith, in a cooler moment, and when the throes of Ireland have not crushed him into a state unfavourable to accurate use of language, what is the meaning of the phrase "the economic laws of nature with regard to the distribution of land," where those laws are to be found, and how it appears that "primogeniture" is opposed to them? Is it urged that the land to an eldest son is default of disposal by will—is a violation of them?

The plain truth is that there are no "economical laws" whatever which regulate or affect the descent of land. Whether land, at the death of an owner, should descend, in the absence of a will, to an eldest son—or to all the sons, as by the custom of London—or to the youngest son, as by the custom of borough English—or to the daughters, as by the custom of Bristol (to compensate for their unusual absence of large attractions, according to an ingenious local tradition), is a question utterly immaterial as regards the "laws of nature." It may be very material as regards public policy. Descent to a single heir (eldest or youngest, male or female) favours the creation of an aristocracy. Partibility is hostile to it. But to take principles of public expediency for "laws of nature" is a solecism worthy only of thinkers lower by at least three or four rates than Mr. Goldwin Smith.

And it is easy to observe how much injury he does to his own argument by this loose mode of expression. "Primogeniture" has nothing to do, as we have said, with "economic laws;" do, as we have said, with "economic laws;" do, as we have said, with "economic laws;"

Stonecl. The vessel is so small as to be a kind of floating gun carriage. Herlwin screws enable her to turn rapidly in her own length. Her helmsman is placed just behind the gun. The gun, therefore, can be laid by rudder right or left, with far more ease and speed than any gun of similar weight otherwise mounted. During the recent trials, with the engines driving reverse ways, the vessel made the full circle in her own length in 32 minutes. With both engines going full ahn made by the helm a complete circle of seventy-five yards diameter in 24 minutes.

The Stonecl is wholly unarmoured. Her strength and security lie in her great gun and diminutiveness. And she must be considered as one of a fourth of similar vessels. Sixty such could be built at price of a single armour-clad frigate, and ten of them, acting from different points, doubling in their own length, escaping into shallows, sheltering under forts, would drive off or render a good account of any hostile vessel venturing to attack our harbours. Primarily they are intended for harbour defence; but the power of lowering the gun and carrying it as cargo would afford great security for these vessels at sea, and enable them to be sent from harbour to harbour with safety. There can be little doubts also, that if occasion arose, their usefulness might be extended beyond the purposes of defence—as, for instance, in bombardments.

Gunboats of the Stonnck class would effect a saving not only in money and men, they would save time also. No class of boats could be built, equipped, and manned more rapidly. They would further save in cost of maintenance, for they might be run up on slip ways and kept in perfect repair for any length of time, and when required, to be launched and supplied with gun and crew ready for service at a few hours' notice. The Stonnck is now to be sent round to Portsmouth, where she is to be attached as experimental gunboat to the gunnery ship Excellent.

Mutinous Conduct of the 45th Regiment at Zoulla.

A Zoulla correspondent sends the following letter to the Bombay Gazette.

ZOULLA, 22rd March.

There has been nothing sensational during the past week, except rumours daily going about regarding the release of the prisoners and Theodore's great army. All the European troops have left this, except a battery of Artillery. Four companies of the 45th Foot, under Major Cummins, were at Kommaylee on the railway works, two of which have now proceeded to the front. I am sorry to say that the men of the 45th at Koomylee "struck work" last Monday, 16th. It appears that they had to turn out at half past 5 every morning to work till a quarter to 12, and again from a quarter to 3 in the afternoon till half past 5 or 6 in the evening. The work to be performed was carrying sleepers and railway irons a distance on two miles, which every one will admit is most laborious. Also the one will admit is most laborious. Also the climate is greatly against Europeans working during the heat of the day. It is well known in the army that when men are working extraordinarily they are entitled to working pay; still these men have never received any, no bean told what they are entitled to. A great deal of grumbling took place, of which the officers took no notice, or would not see to their men's welfare. The consequence was that when the men were being marched off to work on Monday afternoon 59 fell out at "sick" and were taken to hospital, when it was ascertained that nothing was the matter with them. Still, they would not work, and all were made prisoners. Next morning Brigadier General H. Stewart rode in from Zoulla and spoke to the men, saying that it was next to mutiny; still he would not listen to anything the men had to say as to the way they were treated, but left it all to Major Grillin to settle, which he did by giving all ten days' drill. Since then the men are daily going sick and being sent to Zoulla. No doubt this little occurrence will give the regiment a bad name during the campaign, which is much to be regretted, as they have worked harder than any other corps in the country, and would not have had a word against them if the officers had only looked after their men's welfare, and seen that they weren't kept out of their working pay. It is to be hoped that Sir Robert Napier when he hears of it will give the men justice. I have had an opportunity of inspecting the hospital ship Mauritius, and of conversing with a number of the patients. From all accounts it seems to have been a great mistake to have appointed an English staff to these hospitals, as they carry out too much the Home regulations, which the Indian troops are not used to. It would have been far better had Bombay apothecaries and hospital servants been appointed. The men of the Army Hospital Corps may do very well as orderlies in England, but they are quite unsuited for a tropical climate. They cannot attend to the wants of the patients in the way the native servants do.

The appointment of Mr. J. Gardiner Austin, as Colonial Secretary, is formally announced in the Gazette of Saturday.

The Opium Farm.

With reference to Government Notification No. 85 of 26th April, 1867, it is hereby notified that His Excellency Sir Richard Graves MacDonnell, C.B., in Council, has extended to Ng-Yu, of the Fok-Lung Shop, No. 77, Jervois Street, and Ho-Leung, of the Ohio-Long Shop, No. 57, Jervois Street, the Exclusive Privilege of preparing and selling prepared Opium within the Colony of Hongkong and the Waters thereof, for the period of Three Months, from the 1st May, 1868.—Gazette.

The Legislative Council.

In the Gazette of Saturday are published the minutes of the last meeting but one of the Legislative Council, a meeting from which the public was excluded, as the only business was the revision of the Jury List, which is usually gone through in private. The minutes are interesting on this occasion, however, by reason of a resolution proposed by the Chief-Justice. We read:—

The Jury List for the Year commencing on the 1st of March, 1868, is laid on the Table for Revision, and His Excellency invites Honourable Members to a consideration of the Names on the List which should be marked off as Special Jurors.

Whereupon, in the course of Revision, the Chief Justice explains the necessity for increasing the number of available Common Jurymen, and with that view proposes a Resolution, seconded by the Acting Attorney General, that all Brokers be removed from the special Jury List, in order to strength the body of Common Jurors.

And on His Excellency putting the Question, Debate ensues. Council divides—Ayes (2) The Acting Attorney-General. The Chief-Justice. Noes (5) Mr. Keswick. Mr. Byrne, The Acting Colonial Treasurer. The Acting Colonial Secretary. His Excellency, the Governor.

Question put, and negatived.

The Revision of the List is then resumed and completed, 45 of the names in the said List being designated as "Special Jurors."

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

Hongkong, Monday Morning.

The Drug market for the past two days has been quiet and dull, with occasional sales of New Patna at $645 to $647. Nothing has been done in Benares and Malwa, and the following may be taken as the ruling prices, with more sellers than buyers at present. New Patna, $645 to $6475, weak; New Benares, $635 to $640, weak; Malwa, $670 to $672, weak.

Trade continues rather dull in the general markets, with the exception of the foreign speculation that has been in progress for a number of days past in piece goods and Yarn. There were some large sales on Saturday on this account, of T-Cloths, at prices which can hardly be considered up to those lately paid for Grey Shirtings. Business from the natives is almost nil. The particulars of the sales referred to above are:—10,000 pieces 7 lbs. T-Cloths at $2.25, 2,500 pieces at $2.35, and 7,000 pieces 6 lbs. at $1.65, 100 bales No. 16/24 Yarn, medium quality, at $126. The above market continues quiet, small lots of Steamboat have been done at 1 premium, beyond which there is no business to report. There are sellers of Bank at 1½ and 3 premium for old and new, and of Union Dock at 12 discount. Hotel are dull at 30 discount.

NOTICE.

THE Firm, OLD ON-SHING, sellers of Gold Leaf, was established in Sai-ee Street, of the City of Canton, for a great many years; their Gold leaf, bar, and ornaments are warranted to be pure, and can be returned to them if they are not pure; and this is well-known to Foreign Merchants for many years. This firm has hitherto had no branch in any place. But in order to facilitate the community of Hongkong, they have recently established a branch in Bonham Strand. It having come under their notice, that there are evil disposed persons in Hongkong, Macao, and Fuh-shan who sell inferior Gold with the chop of OLD ON-SHING on it, and sometimes mixed with some genuine leaf so as to cheat people. In this way these persons try to cheat the merchants, and also injure the business of OLD ON-SHING. Determined to put a stop to this, the Shop OLD ON-SHING will pay ($10) Ten Dollars reward to any person who will give information about the forgers of their chop, or bring all the tools of the forgers, and give information so as to enable OLD ON-SHING to cause these imposters to be arrested and punished.

Lord Jersey's Difficulties.

(From the "Times.")

The case of "the Earl of Jerseys v. Dicker," heard before one of the Vice-Chancellors last Thursday, will, we hope, direct attention to a system which, there is reason to fear, has become very prevalent. Lord Jersey was unfortunate enough at a very early age to fall into the hands of the moneylenders, and he is scarcely out of his minority before he and his trustees are compelled to appeal to a Court of Law for protection against their extortions. The facts stated in court afford a startling example of the practices in question. Five years ago, when Lord Jersey was at Eton and only 18 years of age, he was induced so answer one of those advertisements, too common in a certain class of newspapers, of which money is the chief object, and which, on the most offered "at a few hours' notice, on the most advantageous terms to noblemen, officers in the army, heirs to entailed estates, and gentlemen of property, on their personal security." What those "advantageous terms" mean may be understood from the first transaction. Lord Jersey received £50, and for that he give his acceptance, due at one month's date, for £75, according to his own statement, or for £85 according to Mr. Dicker. If it was for the former sum, the interest charged was at the rate of 500 per cent. per annum; but Mr. Dicker is modest, and would not be thought to have asked more than is represented by the second sum—that is, £360 per cent. Having thus been once entrapped, it was not likely that a young nobleman at Eton would be allowed soon to escape. Other advances were of course made, and, no doubt, on similary "advantageous" terms. The system was pursued during the remainder of Lord Jersey's Eton course and in his Oxford career, until when he came age, in March, 1866, his actual cashances amounted to about £10,000. It would be interesting to know how much of this sum represented value really received; but at this point Lord Jersey for the moment released himself, by borrowing £10,000 in a legitimate way, and handing over £6,900 to Mr. Dicker, in order to take up the bills given during his minority. He was foolish enough, however, to entangle himself once more, and bills for the nominal amount of £10,000 are again in Mr. Dicker's hands. But this is not all. Another person named Tates, who is alleged to have been Mr. Dicker's principal in most of the transactions, but with whom Lord Jersey duties having had any communication, has put in a claim, on bills and other securities, to the amount of £35,500. Payment has been resisted, upon which Mr. Dicker brings an action for the £10,000, and Lord Jersey appeals to the Court of Chancery for an order to stay proceedings until the accounts shall have been examined. The facts stated in court afford a startling example of this practices in question. Payment has been resisted, upon which Mr. Dicker brings an action for the £10,000, and Lord Jersey appeals to the Court of Chancery for an order to stay proceedings until the accounts shall have been examined.

Such is Lord Jersey's misfortune, and, in all but the amounts involved, it is the misfortune of too many. A regular trade is driven in these usurious loans. The persons who contrive it make it their business to entrap young men of good fortune, or with rich friends. They are not content to leave the newspapers of which we have spoken to entice their victims; they send circulars by the post to everyone with whom they think there is any chance of succeeding. A young man of family cannot join a regiment without being constantly pestered with these circulars. The public schools are not neglected; and the Navy, the Universities, and the Civil Service are invaded by these unprincipled proposals. It is a young man once fairly in very rarely escapes without serious loss. Everything is made easy for him at first, except that, under a disguise which his ignorance does not at first penetrate, he agrees to the most usurious rates of interest. But when his first bill for a month or three months becomes due, he must take it up by another with a further charge for "accommodation," and these charges themselves necessitate his drawing new bills for new advances. He has but one chance—to make a clean breast of it to his friends, and not leave them to extricate him in time. If he is too often the case, he is prevented from doing this by a misplaced sense of honour, the manners only wait until they have a legal claim upon he is much perperly as they think available. They then put the law in force, and many a man, if his friends are unable to assist him, has been robbed in this way of his whole fortune. These men are as ruthless, when the hour for pouncing on their victim has arrived, as they were professedly complaisant before. Their devices are endless, and one of the most common is exemplified in the fact of Lord Jersey not knowing with whom he was really dealing. When it comes to the end, the lender has generally some mysterious personage at his back, into whose hands the bill has fallen, and who cannot be propitiated. It is just the same story over and over again, and the wonder is that after it has been so often told young men should be foolish enough to fall victims to the same snare. But every one fancies he shall escape the fate of others, and the temptations of secrecy and facility allure him to make the experiment. He soon finds that these two expected advantages fail him. The facility ceases after the first few months, and the secrecy is maintained just as long as it suits the usurer, and not a day longer. Indeed, a man who trusts his fame to these men may be quite sure that, from the beginning, it is more or less injured behind his back, and that secret inquiries and whispered hints are damaging his credit.

Since it has thus become a common practice to tempt young men with such circulars as we have described, it becomes necessary for parents and guardians to consider how to resist such a conspiracy. It may be hoped that no flagrant an instance as that of Lord Jersey may often arise; but every year some young men, but they will always be more or less accessible to temptation, and we want some means of putting a check on those who offer the enticement. Now, there is one way, and perhaps only one, which is likely to be effectual, and that is by steadily resisting in the courts of law all extortionate demands. The sums actually advanced must, of course, be paid, though in many cases this is simply a robbery of parents or friends; but if parents and guardians and young men aware of are would make common cause, and resolutely refuse payment of all such extortionate demands as those made on Lord Jersey, these harpies would soon find it no worth their while to run the risks of their nefarious trade. They are indeed to engage in it by the enormous profits it offers, in spite of occasional disappointments, and these profits are obtained, as they well know, under the fear of exposure. They are not ashamed, in the first instance, to play upon the weakness and inexperience of the young, and in the second place to work upon the fears and the shame of parents and friends. Hundreds of such cases are compromised on the most extortionate terms in order to escape an arrest or to avoid a suit. This aversion from public exposure is very natural, but in such instances it is, we think, misplaced, and ought at least to be overcome for the benefit of others. A youthful folly may be condoned, especially when we are aware of the temptations under which it was committed; but every scrupulous in the means of entangling others in the same snare. No one need feel the slightest compunction at dealing strictly with these usurers. They themselves are as merciless as they are unprincipled, and spare no one in the pursuit of their ends. There can be no more striking proof of their rapacity than the terms of their dealing with a nobleman like Lord Jersey, who, they must have known, would be in a position to meet any ordinary demands. If they ask 360 per cent. from a wealthy young nobleman within three years of his majority, what limits can be fixed to their extortion? We hope, as we have said, that the example of Lord Jersey and his trustees will be generally followed. If parents and others will take this course, however unpleasant it may be, they may rely upon public sympathy and support; and we may be sure that after a few successful examples of resistance the supply of tempting circulars on the breakfast-tables of officers, Government clerks, and young men of fortune would quickly and permanently diminish.

PAPER BOAT.—They have a paper race-boat in Portland. It is 24ft. long, 12in. wide, and weighs but 22lb. The lightest wooden boat of similar dimensions weighed 45lb. The most singular of the matter is that the paper boat is four times stronger than one of wood. All that portion, save were the sculler sits, is gas-tight, so that in the event of a race sufficient gas may be taken into it to reduce its weight to 5lb.

REDUCTION

In the rates of premiums for FIRE INSURANCE.

THE Undersigned have (as already intimated in their Circular dated 14th October last,) received authority from the Secretary of the Royal Insurance Company to reduce the rate of Premium under certain circumstances, on private residences and on Furnitures and effects therein contained.

In case of Dwelling Houses removed from the town the rate of premium will be three-quarters per cent. in place of one per cent. per annum as hitherto charged, and in cases of Residences or the situated being detached or semi-detached the rate will be further reduced to one-half per cent.

The Royal's annual rates for Fire Insurance on the various classes of Buildings and their contents will therefore remain as follows until further notice, viz:—

Detached and semi-detached Dwelling Houses (removed from the town) and their contents	¼ per cent.
Other Dwelling Houses (similarly situated) and their contents	¼ per cent.
Offices and Godowns and their contents	1 per cent.
First Class Chinn Houses and their contents	1½ per cent.
